

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

International Data Protection Legislation

Note: The following chart was developed by the U.S. Department of Commerce in order to provide information on national data protection laws that have either been enacted or are currently under consideration around the world. The following does not address sectoral laws, local laws, criminal/civil code provisions, or constitutional provisions that may address data protection.

The chart is intended for information only and is not an authoritative statement or summary of the actual laws in these countries. The chart also may not reflect all recent changes and legislative updates.

COUNTRY	LAW(s)/BILL(s)	STATUS	KEY DETAILS
Argentina	Law for the Protection of Personal Data (English language version: http://www.privacyinternational.org/countries/argentina/argentine-dpa.html)	Law enacted in November of 2000. Regulations for law enacted in December 2001.	Ensures notice, purpose limitation, data quality and security. Requires express consent for sensitive information. Data subjects have right to access, correct, block, or update data. Law enforced by national data protection commissioner (http://www.jus.gov.ar/minjus/DPDP/). Complaints may be brought before judicial system. Provides “adequacy” standards for data flows outside of Argentina. The European Union has determined that Argentina’s law meets the EU’s “adequacy” standard.
Australia	Privacy Amendment (Private Sector) Act of 2000 (http://privacy.gov.au)	Law enacted in December 2000 Became effective in December 2001.	Establishes National Privacy Principles covering collection, use and disclosure, accuracy, security, management, access, anonymity, and identification of personal data. Establishes “co-regulatory” scheme which allows the use of business-generated codes of conduct that have been approved by national Privacy Commissioner (http://privacy.gov.au). Complaints may be brought to/by Privacy Commissioner. Law operates extra-territorially, covering organizations outside Australia in situations where data is moved overseas for use or processing. Australian authorities have sought “adequacy” from the European Union..
Austria	Data Protection Law (English language version: http://www.bka.gv.at/datenschutz/indexe.htm)	Law enacted in January 2000. Implements European	See “European Union” for information on principles established by Austrian law.

		Union Directive on Data Protection.	Law enforced by National Data Protection Commission (http://www.bka.gv.at/datenschutz/indexe.htm)
--	--	-------------------------------------	--

Belgium	Processing of Personal Data Law (Dutch and French language version: http://www.privacy.fgov.be/)	Revised law implemented in 2001. Implements European Union Directive on Data Protection	See “European Union” for information on principles established by the Belgian law. Law enforced by Data Privacy Commissioner (http://www.privacy.fgov.be/)
Brazil	Bill #6891/02 proposed in Brazilian Congress by Deputy Orlando Fantazzini (Portuguese language version: http://www.camara.gov.br/Internet/sileg/Prop_Detalhe.asp?id=56678)	Bill proposed by Deputy Fantazzini in June 2002. Legislative timeframe for passage of bill not known.	Bill proposed by Deputy Fantazzini would establish privacy principles for notice, consent, data integrity, security, access and enforcement. Handling of sensitive data would be prohibited in most circumstances. Bill would establish an “appropriateness” standard for data transfers outside of Brazil.
Bulgaria	Personal Data Protection Act	Adopted in December 2001. Came into effect in January 2002.	Resembles EU Directive on Data Protection. Personal information is defined as data relating to natural persons, legal entities, and even government personnel and agencies. Opt-in consent required for sensitive data. Law creates a Commission on Protection of Personal Data to supervise compliance and implementation.
Canada	Personal Information Protection & Electronic Documents Act (English language version: http://www.privcom.gc.ca/legislation/02_06_01_e.asp)	Law passed in October 1999. Received “Royal Assent” in April 2000. Implementation occurred in three stages (from 2001 – 2004).	Law establishes 10 privacy principles. Businesses must obtain minimum of opt-out consent from data subjects in order to collect, use or disclose personal information. Privacy Commissioner’s Office (http://www.privcom.gc.ca) has broad powers to ensure compliance. Law applied to all inter-provincial and international transactions beginning January 2004. Law has received “adequacy” from European Union.
Chile	Law for the Protection of Private Life	Entered into force in October 1999. Amended in 2002.	Establishes rules for the handling of data in the public and private sectors.

			Establishes rights to access, correction and judicial control of personal data. Addresses financial, commercial and banking data. Only databases in the country must be registered. Law does not establish a data protection enforcement body. Enforcement occurs via court system.
China	Chin's State Council for Informatization Office has indicated that it plans to develop data privacy legislation for the private sector. Apparently, the bill would apply to online and offline data. However, few additional details are available.	Time frame for introduction of bill not clear.	No additional details available.
Colombia	Data Protection Bill (Spanish language version: http://ulpiano.com/colombia.pdf)	Approved by Colombia's Senate in December 2002. To be discussed in Colombia's Chamber of Deputies in March 2003.	Details Pending.
Czech Republic	Act on Personal Data Protection (English language version: http://www.uoou.cz/eng/101_2000.php3)	Enacted in April 2000 Went into effect in June 2000. Not clear if legislation to implement EU Directive has been introduced.	See "European Union". Compatible EU Directive's requirements. Political parties, churches and some civic organizations exempted from law. Law implemented and enforced by Office for Personal Data Protection (http://www.uoou.cz/eng/index.php3)

Denmark	Act on Processing of Personal Data (English language version: http://www.datatilsynet.dk/eng/index.html)	Entered into force in July 2000. Implements EU Directive on Data Protection.	See "European Union". Law enforced by Danish Data Protection Agency (http://www.datatilsynet.dk/)
Estonia	Law on the Protection of Personal Data (English language version: http://www.dp.gov.ee/?lang=en)	Enacted in June 1996. Supplemental "Databases Act" passed in April 1997. Several subsequent amendments to these acts. Data Protection Act Passed in 2003. Implements EU Directive on Data Protection.	See "European Union". Act divides personal data into non-sensitive and sensitive personal data. Processing of non-sensitive data permissible without consent of data subject if in accordance with law. Processors must register the processing of sensitive data. Sets out general principles for maintenance of databases and requirements for data processing. Laws enforced by Data Protection Inspectorate (http://www.dp.gov.ee/?lang=en)
European Union	European Union Directive on Data Protection (Directive 95/46/EC) (Multiple language versions: http://europa.eu.int/comm/internal_market/en/dataprot/law/index.htm)	Passed by EU Parliament in 1995. Directive effective/implementation begun in 1998. Supplemented by Directive for Protection of Privacy in Telecommunications Sector (1997); regulations for data processing (2000); and Directive on Privacy and Electronic Communications (2002). Implementation by 15 Member States at varying stages of progress.	Personal information is defined as information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person. An identifiable person is one who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to an identification number or to one or more factors specific to his physical, physiological, mental, economic, cultural or social identity. The scope of the Directive is very broad. It applies to all processing of data, on-line and off-line, manual as well as automatic, and all organizations holding personal data. It excludes from its reach only data used "in the course of purely personal or household activity". Establishes requirements for notice, consent, accuracy, security and access. Establishes strict guidelines for the processing of personal information. "Processing" includes any operations

		involving personal information, except perhaps its mere transmission. "Sensitive" data, such as that pertaining to racial or ethnic origins, political or religious beliefs, or health or sex life, may not be processed at all unless such processing comes within limited exceptions, for example if the individual gives explicit consent. Mandates a government authority to oversee data processing activities. Each Member State must establish an independent public authority to supervise the protection of personal data. Requires that Member States enact laws prohibiting the transfer of personal data to countries outside the European Union that fail to ensure an "adequate level of [privacy] protection". Where the level of protection is deemed inadequate, Member States are required to take measures to prevent any transfer of data to the third country.
--	--	---

Finland	Personal Data Act (English language version: http://www.tietosuoja.fi/1560.htm)	Went into effect in June 1999. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection.	See “European Union” for information on principles established by the Finnish law. Law enforced by the Data Protection Ombudsman (http://www.tietosuoja.fi/1560.htm)
France	Data Protection Act Draft Implementation Law (pursuant to EU Data Protection Directive) of July 2001 (French language version: http://www.justice.gouv.fr/actua/loicnild.htm)	Originally enacted in 1978. Implementing legislation (pursuant to EU Directive) before French Senate.	See “European Union” for information on principles established by the French law. Law enforced by The French Data Protection Authority (CNIL) (http://www.cnil.fr/uk/index.htm)
Germany	Federal Data Protection Act (English language version: http://www.bfd.bund.de/information/bdsg_eng.pdf)	Adopted in May 2001. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection. All “Länder” (except Sachsen and Bremen) have adopted laws to implement the Directive. These acts apply to the public sector of the respective “Länder”.	See “European Union” for information on principles established by the German law. Law enforced by the Federal Data Protection Commissioner (http://www.bfd.bund.de/information/engl_corner.html) and “Länder” data protection authorities.
Greece	Law on the Protection of Individuals with Regard to the Processing of Personal Data (English language version: http://www.dpa.gr/legal_eng.htm)	Entered into force in 1997. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection	See “European Union” for information on principles established by the German law. Law enforced by the Hellenic Data Protection Authority (http://www.dpa.gr/home_eng.htm)
Hong Kong	Personal Data (Privacy) Ordinance (http://www.pco.org.hk/english/ordinance/ordfull.html)	Enacted in 1995. Implemented in December 1996.	Establishes six principles to regulate the collection, use, accuracy and security of personal information. Data subjects provided right to access, correct or erase personal information. Establishes complaint procedures and allows compensation for damages suffered. Enforcement of ordinance occurs via the Privacy Commissioner’s Office (http://www.pco.org.hk/#)

Hungary	Act on the Protection of Personal Data and Disclosure of Data of Public Interest (English language version: http://www.obh.hu/adatved/indexek/index.htm)	Enacted in 1992. Amended in 1999 in order to become compatible with EU Directive on Data Protection. Currently unclear whether further legislation is needed to fully implement EU Directive on Data Protection.	See “European Union”. Resembles EU Directive on Data Protection. Applies to both the public and private sectors. The law expressly prohibits the use of all purpose identification numbers or codes. Enforcement occurs via the Parliamentary Commissioner for Data Protection and Freedom of Information (http://www.obh.hu/adatved/indexek/index.htm) Law has received “adequacy” from the EU.
Iceland	Act on the Protection of Individuals with regard to the Processing of Personal Data (English language version: http://www.personuvernd.is/tolvunefnd.nsf/pages/english)	Came into force in January 2000.	Consistent with EU Directive on Data Protection. Iceland is a member of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA). Law covers both automated and manual processing of personal information. Restricts use of national identification numbers, video surveillance technology. Enforcement occurs via the Privacy & Data Protection Authority (http://www.personuvernd.is/tolvunefnd.nsf/pages/english)

India	Information Technology Act of 2005	Private sector draft passed to Government of India. Expected to be introduced to Parliament in April 2005.	The draft legislation makes three basic amendments to the existing IT Act of 2000: 1) general clarifications and updates to the language; 2) clarification of network service provider liabilities (directly related to the eBay/Bazee issue); and 3) the expansion of activities that result in criminal penalties and the conversion of existing civil penalties to criminal penalties.
Ireland	Data Protection Act Data Protection Amendment Bill (pursuant to EU Data Protection Directive) (Bill summarized at http://www.dataprivacy.ie/3bii.htm)	Law originally passed in 1988. Certain regulations to implement EU Data Protection Directive passed in December 2001. Data Protection Amendment enacted in 2003. Amendment implements EU Directive on Data Protection.	See "European Union" for information on principles established by the Irish law. Law enforced by the Data Protection Commissioner (http://www.dataprivacy.ie/)
Israel	Protection of Privacy Law	Enacted in February 1981. Amended in 1996.	Regulates data processing and computer databases. Imposes limitations on data controllers/processors concerning use of information (11 activities prohibited by law). Data subjects have right to inspect, correct and erase information. Databases with over 10,000 names must register with Ministry of Justice's Registrar of Databases.
Italy	Data Protection Act (English language version: http://www.dataprotection.org/garante/preview/1,1724,448,00.html?sezione=120&LANG=2)	Enacted in 1996. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection.	See "European Union" for information on principles established by the Italian law. Enforcement occurs via the Italian Data Protection Commission (http://astra.garanteprivacy.it/garante/frontdoor/1,1003,00.html?LANG=2)
Japan	Law on the Protection of Personal Information	Passed May 30, 2003. Will go into effect May 2005.	Law sets forth "basic philosophy" that calls for "respect for individual personality."

		Ministries are in the process of drafting implementation guidelines. Voluntary guidelines protecting personal data collected by RFID technology have been published by METI.	News organizations, research institutions, religious groups, political organizations and "writers" are exempt from the law. It is unclear how enforcement of the law will be handled, may be clarified in the implementation guidelines.
Latvia	Law on Personal Data Protection	Enacted in March 2000. Entered into force in January 2001. Amended by Law of 2002. Not clear whether Latvia plans to introduce legislation to specifically implement EU Directive.	Similar to EU Directive on Data Protection. Law requires all databases (public and private sector) to be registered with Ministry of Justice, State Data Inspectorate.
Lithuania	Law on Legal Protection of Personal Data (English language version: http://www.ada.lt/en/legal.html)	Enacted in 1996. Amended in 1998, 2000, 2002 and 2004.	See "European Union". Implements EU Directive on Data Protection. Personal data can only be disclosed to a third party under an approved personal contract. Law enforced by the State Data Protection Inspectorate (http://www.ada.lt/en/)
Luxembourg	Data Protection Law (French language version: http://www.etat.lu/memorial/memorial/a/2002/a0911308.pdf)	Enacted in 2002. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection.	See "European Union" for information on principles established by Luxembourg's law. Enforcement occurs via Commission nationale pour la protection des données (http://www.cnpd.lu/)
Malaysia	Personal Data Protection Bill	Various Ministries have drafted the bill and it is currently awaiting Parliament. Legislative timeframe not yet established.	Early drafts of the bill would have established nine principles for the collection and use of personal data. Early drafts of the bill had a trans-border provision that would require other regimes to be "substantially similar"; or "serve the same purpose"; or provide an "adequate" level of protection.

			Data Protection Commissioner would enforce the law.
Mexico	Federal Personal Data Protection Bill	Bill introduced in Parliament by Senator Antonio Garcia Torres in February 2001. Passed by Mexican Senate and forwarded to House of Representatives in April 2002. Bill currently under review at the committee level in the House of Representatives. Further timeframe for review/passage of bill not known at this time.	Bill would establish requirements for notice, consent, access, data accuracy and security. Most recent (September 2002) draft of bill narrows the scope of the legislation to data involving natural persons. “[A]ll gathering and processing of data require the prior consent of each person involved.” Defines “sensitive data” to include “all data that reveal the racial or ethnic origin; political opinions; religious, philosophical or moral beliefs; labor union membership; health or sex life of a person”. Requires all data to be stored “so as to enable the right of access to be exercised by each interested person involved”. Trans-border data provision imposes an “equivalency” standard for data protection regimes in other countries; would presumably prohibit transfers to nations that do not exactly match the requirements set forth by the draft bill. Sets forth broad registration and reporting requirements. Law would be enforced by the Federal Institute for the Protection of Personal Data.
Netherlands	Personal Data Protection Act (English language version: http://www.cbppweb.nl/)	Approved by Senate in June 2000. Entered into force in September 2001.	See “European Union” for information on principles established by the Dutch law. Enforcement occurs via the

		Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection.	Dutch Data Protection Authority (http://www.cbpweb.nl/)
New Zealand	Privacy Act (http://www.privacy.org.nz/slegisf.html)	Enacted in 1993. Subsequently amended.	Applies to both public and private sectors. Establishes 12 privacy principles roughly equivalent to those set forth in the EU Directive on Data Protection. Approved industry codes of conduct may be adhered to in lieu of legislation. Enforcement overseen by the Office of the Privacy Commissioner (http://www.privacy.org.nz/top.html)
Norway	Personal Data Act of 2000 (English language version: http://www.datatilsynet.no/)	Passed in 2000. Entered into force in January 2001.	Consistent with EU Directive on Data Protection. Norway is a member of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA). Applies to both public and private sectors. Trans-border provision prohibits transfer of personal data to another country without the permission of The Data Inspectorate (http://www.datatilsynet.no/), the agency that enforces the law. Personal data cannot be transferred to another country that has less protection than that provided by the EU Directive on Data Protection..
Pakistan	Foreign Data and Protection Act of 2004	To be submitted to Parliament by April 2005. (Estimated timeframe)	In its current draft form, the legislation covers three basic areas: 1) foreign data that is electronically or automatically processed; 2) the processing and security of foreign data; and 3) the responsibilities and powers of the Certification Council, which certifies data processors in Pakistan.
Paraguay	Regulation for Personal Data (Spanish language version: http://www.ulpiano.com/habeasdaata_paraguay_Ley.ht)	Passed in December 2000.	Details pending.

	m)
Philippines	Philippine Government has indicated that it plans to develop comprehensive privacy legislation. Legislative time frame not clear.
Poland	Law on the Protection of Personal Data (English language version: http://www.giodo.gov.pl/English/english.htm)	Passed by Parliament in October 1997. Entered into force in April 1998. Regulations passed in 1998. Law amended in August 2001. Currently not clear if Poland will introduce legislation to fully implement EU Directive, or whether such implementing legislation is needed.	See “European Union”. Law is consistent with the EU Directive on Data Protection. Applies to both public and private sectors. Regulations establish standards for the security of information systems. Data subjects have substantial rights to access, amend, correct and/or delete data. Enforcement of law handled by the Inspector General for the Protection of Personal Data (http://www.giodo.gov.pl/English/english.htm)
Portugal	Law on the Protection of Personal Data (English language version: http://www.cnpd.pt/Leis/lei_6798en.htm)	Entered into force in 1998. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection.	See “European Union” for information on principles established by Portugal’s law. Enforcement occurs via the National Data Protection Commission (http://www.cnpd.pt/)
Russian Federation	Law of the Russian Federation on Information, Informatization and Information Protection	Passed by the Duma (Parliament) in 1995. Supplemental Act on the Information of Personal Character has been proposed.	Applies to both public and private sectors. Establishes requirements for the processing of personal information. Prohibits misuse of personal information; prohibits use of sensitive information. No agencies have been established to enforce the law.
Singapore	No data protection law. However, Singapore is considering the adoption of a “voluntary” code of conduct on data protection for the private sector. (English language version: http://www.trustsg.org.sg/mdpc.htm)	The National Trust Council (NTC) launched a public consultation exercise on the Model Code in February 2002. The public consultation has since closed in May 2002. In December 2002, the	Sets forth a set of data protection principles loosely based on the OECD’s privacy guidelines. Draft provisions apply to “the processing of personal data wholly or partly by automatic means”. Companies would be required to provide a list of

		NTC launched an enhanced version of the Model Data Protection Code. It is not clear exactly how (or at what point) the code would be officially endorsed/implemented.	organizations "to which it may have disclosed data about the individual". It is not clear how the code would be enforced.
Slovakia	Act on the Protection of Personal Data (Slovak language version: http://www.dataprotection.gov.sk/buxus/generate_page.php3?page_id=1)	Entered into force in 1998. Additional Act on Personal Data Protection passed in 2002. Not clear if Slovakia is planning to introduce additional legislation to fully implement EU Directive, or whether such implementing legislation is needed.	See "European Union". Establishes requirements for notice, consent, access, accuracy, correction, security and confidentiality. Processing of certain sensitive information is prohibited. Imposes an "adequacy" standard for transfers of data to other countries. Enforcement of law handled by the Inspection Unit for the Protection of Personal Data (http://www.dataprotection.gov.sk/buxus/generate_page.php3?page_id=1)
Slovenia	Law on Personal Data Protection	Entered into effect in August 1999. Amended in 2001. Not clear if legislation to implement EU Directive is required.	See "European Union". Consistent with EU Directive on Data Protection. Enforcement occurs via Human Rights Ombudsman (http://www.varuh-rs.si/cgi/teksti-eng.cgi/Index?vsebina)
South Africa	South Africa has recently enacted an Electronic Communications and Transactions (ECT) Law that sets forth "voluntary" requirements for data protection. (Version of the bill at http://www.cellular.co.za/ect-bill.pdf) SA Law Commission currently investigating privacy and data protection legislation. Issue paper published for public comment, closing February 2004. (Issue paper at http://wwwserver.law.wits.ac.za/salc/issue/issue.html)	The bill was signed into law in 2002. Timing for draft legislation unknown.	Chapter VIII of the law addresses the Protection of Personal Information. Sets forth a series of data protection requirements. Applies only to electronic data transmissions. A data controller may "voluntarily" subscribe to the principles by recording the principles in a written agreement. Requires opt-in consent from data subject prior to

			collecting/transferring any personal data. It is not clear how the requirements of the law are to be enforced. Issue paper favors approach taken by EU Data Directive. The issue paper will be followed by a discussion paper containing draft legislation and a report with the Commission's final recommendations and proposed legislative proposals.
South Korea	Act on Promotion of Information and Communications Network Utilization and Data Protection (PICNU) Amendments to PICNU Three comprehensive data privacy bills currently before the National Assembly.	Entered into effect in 2000. Amendment passed Dec. 29, 2003, effective date unknown. Timeframe for draft legislation before National Assembly unclear.	Establishes requirements for the collection, use and disclosure of personal data. Law applies to "providers of information and communications services" and certain offline services, namely travel services. In most cases, opt-out consent from data subject required. However, exceptions apply. Opt-in consent required for certain sensitive information. Enforcement is complaint-driven and occurs via judicial system and Personal Information Mediation Committee. Strengthens the protection of private information related to the use of Internet and tightens regulatory control with respect to unwanted electronic mail on a nationwide basis. Includes consumer consent requirement to transfer individual information overseas. Exact content of three National Assembly bills unclear. It has been rumored that at least one of the bills would adopt an opt-in approach to consent and that it would impose strict onward transfer rules.

Spain	Data Protection Law (English language version: https://www.agenciaprotecciondatos.org/datd_english.htm)	Passed in 1999. Entered into force in 2000. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection.	See “European Union” for information on principles established by Spain’s law. Enforcement occurs via the Data Protection Agency (http://agenciaprotecciondatos.org)
Sweden	Personal Data Act (English language version: http://www.datainspektionen.se/in_english/default.asp?content=/in_english/start/start.shtml)	Enacted in 1998. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection.	See “European Union” for information on principles established by Sweden’s law. Enforcement occurs via the Data Inspection Board (http://www.datainspektionen.se/in_english/default.asp?content=/in_english/start/start.shtml)
Switzerland	Federal Act of Data Protection (English language version: http://www.edsb.ch/e/gesetz/schweiz/act.htm)	Originally enacted in 1992. Subsequently amended.	Consistent with EU Directive on Data Protection. Switzerland is a member of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA). In 1999, the Swiss law received “adequacy” from the EU. Trans-border data provision requires data controllers to register transfers of data to other countries. Requires that other countries have equivalent laws. Law enforced by the Swiss Federal Data Protection Commissioner (http://www.edsb.ch/e/aktuell/index.htm)
Taiwan	Computer Processed Data Protection Law (English language version: http://www.virtual-asia.com/taiwan/bizpack/legalcodes/cpdpl.htm)	Originally enacted in 1995.	Applies to public sector and certain areas of the private sector. Regulates the “computerized processing of personal data”, In order to collect or process personal information, a data controller must either obtain written consent from the data subject; have a contractual relationship with the data subject; determine that the data

			is already within the public domain; or determine that the data is for academic research. No central agency responsible for enforcement of the law. Enforcement is handled by relevant agency for the sector concerned.
Thailand	Data Protection Bill	Thailand's National Information Technology Committee is currently drafting the bill. No timeframe for introduction of the bill; public comment; Parliamentary consideration/approval has been announced.	Details pending.
United Kingdom	Data Protection Act (http://www.dataprotection.gov.uk/)	Passed by Parliament in 1998. Entered into force in 2000. Implements the EU Directive on Data Protection.	See "European Union" for information on principles established by the United Kingdom's law. Enforcement occurs via the Information Commissioner (http://www.dataprotection.gov.uk/)

*Developed by Jeff Rohlmeier, U.S. Department of Commerce, (202) 482-0343, jeff_rohlmeier@ita.doc.gov
Revised: 3/4/05*

ITA Endorsement Policy

Links to websites outside the U.S. Federal Government, or the use of trade, firm or corporation names with the International Trade Administration websites, are for the convenience of the user. Such use does not constitute an official endorsement or approval by the U.S. Commerce Department of any private sector website, product or service.